Spend a Semester in Alaska!

Trustees for Alaska is offering environmental law externships to interested law students who have a demonstrated commitment to the public interest and the environment. Second and third-year law students with coursework in administrative and environmental law are preferred. Trustees provides a full spectrum of public interest law experience to its externs, including research, writing, client contact, drafting legal documents, and public speaking on administrative law matters, depending on client needs. In general, students should plan to spend one full semester in Alaska, although start and end dates are negotiable. Externs usually find their own housing, but Trustees staff will provide leads on possible living arrangements.

Trustees for Alaska is a non-profit, public interest environmental law firm that has been providing legal services in Alaska for over 30 years. Trustees provides counsel to local, regional and national conservation organizations, Alaska Native villages and tribal councils, fishing organizations, and others in environmental and natural resource matters. Our work generally focuses on state and federal laws concerning oil and gas leasing, exploration and development, clean air and water, mining, marine and terrestrial conservation, energy, land use, public lands, forestry, and transportation.

Electronic applications are encouraged and may be sent to aaguilar@trustees.org. Please include a cover letter, resume, transcript, short writing sample, and reference list to Alice Aguilar, Paralegal. Our snail mail address is: Trustees for Alaska, 1026 W. 4th Avenue, Ste. 201, Anchorage, AK 99501. Thank you for your interest. Please pass this information on to other interested students.
