Hi everyone,

Just a couple quick announcements before the Thanksgiving break:

1. Enter the National Animal Advocacy Moot Court Competition
2. Register for the Future of Animal Law Conference
3. Foster Victoria, a Cat in Need
4. Dog Biscuit Baking; Holiday Dinner

As always, email SALDF if you'd like any additional information and keep an eye on our website: <http://www.law.harvard.edu/students/orgs/saldf/>.

Have a fun and relaxing Thanksgiving break!

1. Enter the National Animal Advocacy Competitions!

Best of luck to HLS students Victoria Schwartz and Ken Stalter who have entered the Moot Court Competition and Kevin VanLandingham who has entered the Closing Argument Competition! If you are interested in competing, please see <http://www.lclark.edu/org/ncal/mootcourt.html> for more information. SALDF will cover the registration fee! (February 23 - 25.)

2. Register for the Future of Animal Law Conference

This spring, March 30 - April 1, the top minds in the field of animal law will present and discuss cutting-edge legal strategies to protect the lives and advance the interests of animals. An exciting line-up of panelists, including keynote speakers Ben Stein and Jeremy Rifkin, will explore topics such as: Animal Hoarding; Creating a Federal Animal Protection Agency; Animal Law Around the World; Opportunities in Animal Law; and much more! To register, please visit <http://www.animallawconference.org>. Interested in attending? SALDF will cover a certain number of HLS registration fees; just shoot us an email! (If you'd like to volunteer at the event, please email SALDF, too.)

3. Foster Victoria, a Cat in Need

Charles River Alleycats is looking for a foster home for a sweet, shy cat who recently had kittens in a garage in Medford. The kittens have been placed, but the mother needs a place to readjust to living with humans. According to the neighbors, she has been living on the streets for two years, but it only took a couple of days for her to show that she is happy being inside and enjoys being patted and brushed. Her name is Victoria and she will need some time to develop her potential so she can be adopted to a good home. For more information, please email jforde@law.harvard.edu.

4. Dog Biscuit Baking; Holiday Dinner

Keep your eyes out for upcoming events including baking dog biscuits for a local shelter, visiting the shelter, a vegetarian holiday dinner, and a SALDF t-shirt design contest!
