Want to help brighten the holidays for a shelter pet? Love animals but never have any time to spend with them because of law school? We have an easy for you to spread happiness to homeless puppies and kittens while taking an animal-oriented study break. It has been proven that petting a dog or cat for even 5 minutes lowers stress!

Join SALDF members this weekend for one or both of our activities--we are baking home-made dog biscuits (yes, we do own bone-shaped cookie cutters) and delivering them to a no-kill shelter in East Brookfield MA.

When and What: Baking Saturday afternoon at Marissa's house in Watertown. Take the 71 bus to Russell and walk less than 3 minutes to get there. The address is 60 Barnard Ave 02472. Please call for detailed directions (314) 800-8155.

AND/OR Visiting the Shelter Sunday morning. We are driving together and leaving from the law school. The no-kill sanctuary is called "Second Chance for Animals" if you want to check them out online.

Please email saldf@law.harvard.edu to RSVP so we can plan for how many cars we will need. The more the merrier!

Please join us in spreading joy to animals without families this holiday season. It's super easy to bake biscuits and even easier to ride along to the shelter to hand them out! We will also be playing with the cats and walking the dogs => They are looking forward to having us!

We hope you can join us in taking time out to make this small difference in the spirit of the season. Any questions can be emailed to saldf@law.harvard.edu.

Thank you!
