1. Register for the Future of Animal Law Conference

SALDF has a limited amount of funding available to cover registration costs for Harvard Law students interested in attending the Future of Animal Law Conference (March 30 - April 1). Ben Stein and Jeremy Rifkin will be speaking. For more information, please visit <http://www.animallawconference.com/>. If interested, please email saldf@law.harvard.edu as soon as possible.

2. Update the Living Vegetarian at Harvard Law School Wiki!

Almost 200 people have registered so far for the Future of Animal Law Conference held at Harvard at the end of March! Many will be vegetarians looking for a place to grab a bite to eat around campus -- help them out, and your fellow HLSers, by contributing to our Living Vegetarian at Harvard Law School Wiki at <http://hlsaldf.pbwiki.com/>. Feel free to add your favorite restaurants, grocery stores, shops, etc.!

3. Watch the National Animal Advocacy Competitions

Is the Federal Animal Fighting Enterprise Act of 2006 unconstitutional? What, if any, liability should Meredith Hughes have for shooting and killing her neighbor's dog? Come watch a round or two of the National Animal Advocacy Competitions, held at Harvard February 23 - 25. Support HLS students Kevin VanLandingham, Victoria Schwartz, and Kenneth Stalter. For a schedule, please visit <http://www.lclark.edu/org/ncal/eventschedule07.html>.

4. Summer School at Lewis & Clark Law School

Still looking for something to do this summer? Lewis & Clark Law School offers a summer program which includes three animal law courses: Endangered Species Act (Dan Rohlf), Animal Rights Law (Steven Wise), and Animal Law: Legislation, Lobbying & Litigation (Nancy Perry and Jonathan Lovvorn). For more information please visit <http://law.lclark.edu/org/ncal/summerschool.html>.
