Dear 1Ls,

The Arts & Literature Law Society (ALLS) welcomes you to Harvard Law School! Your first year at HLS can be exciting but also a little overwhelming at times. If you would like to find respite in a creative outlet, we encourage you to get involved with ALLS. Officially, ALLS seeks to nourish the connection between the arts and the law, but ALLS is also a great break from the law books and a reminder of the arts and culture that surround us. ALLS defines arts broadly to include the visual arts, the performing arts, and literature. In the past, we have fostered dialogue about the arts through a speaker series, reading groups, film screenings, and museum visits.

Your involvement in ALLS can start right away, as we are looking for chairs to help organize our many activities. If you would like to know about the community events that engage the arts, we encourage you to get on our email list. If you have any questions or are interested in becoming an officer on the ALLS executive board, please visit our website at http://www.law.harvard.edu/students/orgs/alls/ and contact Effie Barton at f Barton@law.harvard.edu.

Ars longa, vita brevis,
The Arts and Literature Law Society
